PAS Nairobi Launches Trace Effect English Video Game for Access Students

On March 27, PAS Nairobi launched Trace Effects, a video game for learning English and American culture produced by the Office of English Language Programs, in the predominately Muslim coastal region of Kenya. Over 150 English Access students, alumni, and teachers heard the Outreach Coordinator's presentation about resources and materials available to learn the English language and instructed the students how to play the video game. The students were excited about using Trace Effects to improve their English and expressed their gratitude to the Embassy for the opportunity to participate in the Access program.
